

CONTENTS

FEATURES

9 Keeping up Appearances

One man's search for additional pieces of intricate iron lacework for his Victorian villa leads to business idea that will help others whose veranda decorations are missing or damaged.

10 Back to the future in the forest

Sustainability, taking care of the environment, going back to basics, being less wasteful – words and phrases the whole world seems to repeating infinitum, but how many are actively living the talk? Inspired by New Zealand colonial history and a conviction that we need to go easy on the earth, Douglas Wallace is leading by example.

13 Museum of Wellington City & Sea

Christopher Moor visits a prominent Wellington waterfront building which once held precious imports and has since reinvented itself as keeper of that very same history.

16 Small Footprints on a large Landscape – Swiss Pioneers

Erika Currie finds out what contribution the small number of Swiss pioneers made to early New Zealand and how today's Swiss nationals keep their history and traditions alive.

20 Old Wheels keep turning

Erika Currie visits Higgins Park at Wakefield, near Nelson.

24 Depicting Life in Small Scale

The art of miniature-making goes back centuries before the birth of Christ. Early models of houses and cooking implements were funerary gifts going with the departed to service their needs in the hereafter. Christopher Moor looks at the history of miniature-making and talks to masters of the ancient art.

29 Window on Nelson's Colonial History

Erika Currie discovers history and a fine brew at Founders Heritage Park.

32 Encounter Between Two Cultures

Two People - Two Cultures - One Nation; the story of colonial encounter between two cultures – tangata whenua (our Maori people) and the early European settlers. Erika Currie visits the Tamaki Heritage Village and Ferrymead Heritage Park in Christchurch.

COLUMNS

1 Editorial

4 Book Draws, Mail Box, News

8 New Show for Oamaru's Historic Precinct

57 Heritage Reading

64 Not the Last Picture Show

PLUS

27 Freepost Subscription Form

60 Upcoming Events

61 Club Listings

62 Next Issue

37 Candy Cottage

A little kauri cottage, which started life as the Te Komiti Post Office at Tinopai, on the shores of the picturesque Upper Kaiapara Harbour, is 100 years old. Iris Hambling reports.

40 Full Circle: Reopening Onehunga Rail

Mark Forman delves into the history of the Auckland-Onehunga Railway line.

43 Inspired by Colonial History

William Cottrell is one of New Zealand's leading experts on colonial furniture, and first-time author whose book won awards and accolades at this year's Montana book awards. Erika Currie reports.

46 From Milk to Machines

A 1923 Wellington Dairy Farmers Co-Operative Dairy Factory is now the home of the Wellington Vintage Machinery Club. Vivienne Bailey pays them a visit.

48 Heritage Dressing – how to get the look – Part One

In the first of a two-part series Erika Currie presents some ideas on how to put a few pieces together to achieve the look of yesteryear.

52 Set in Concrete

Tony Russell takes a tour around the ruins of one of New Zealand's most significant industrial heritage sites on the banks of the Mahurangi River at Warkworth.

56 Boldly Beautiful –
Old Quarry transformed

Ugly, barren and unsightly - these words once described the hills of the former Te Puna Quarry near Tauranga. Lisa Sarsfield finds the former industrial eyesore transformed.

Front Cover Main Photograph:

Martin James in the colonial kitchen of Curragh Cottage.